

The University of Tennessee College of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians. It is the role of the UT Continuing Education and Professional Development (CEPD) office to assist departments, organizations and agencies in certifying educational activities as continuing medical education for physicians and allied healthcare professionals and ensure those courses are compliant with ACCME requirements.

Activity directors of conferences are responsible for ensuring that all CME-certified activities are compliant with the ACCME standards. All speaker presentations and handouts must be reviewed and approved for the activity. Simultaneously, activity directors will review the relevant financial relationships that have been disclosed by speakers and verify that no conflict of interest can be found in the presentation materials.

Speaker Name: _____ Date of Presentation: _____

Presentation Title: _____

Relevant financial relationships disclosed by speaker: _____

I have reviewed the presentation and handout materials.

The presentation and handout contain educational material suitable for CME credit.

The presentation and handout is compliant with standards regarding commercial bias and conflicts of interest.

I have conducted this evaluation in light of speaker's disclosure of his/her relevant financial relationships with the above listed commercial interests and find no evidence of conflict of interest in the presentation.

Activity Director/

Designated Physician or Researcher: _____ Date of approval: _____

Reviewed and Approved by UT CEPD: _____ Date: _____